FIRST MEETINGS ARE AWKWARD...
NOTHING REALLY
GOES TO PLAN

ONE OR TWO PEOPLE
WHO ARE THE BEST FIT FOR ME
IS ENOUGH

DID COLLEGE FRIENDSHIPS EVER FEEL HARD?

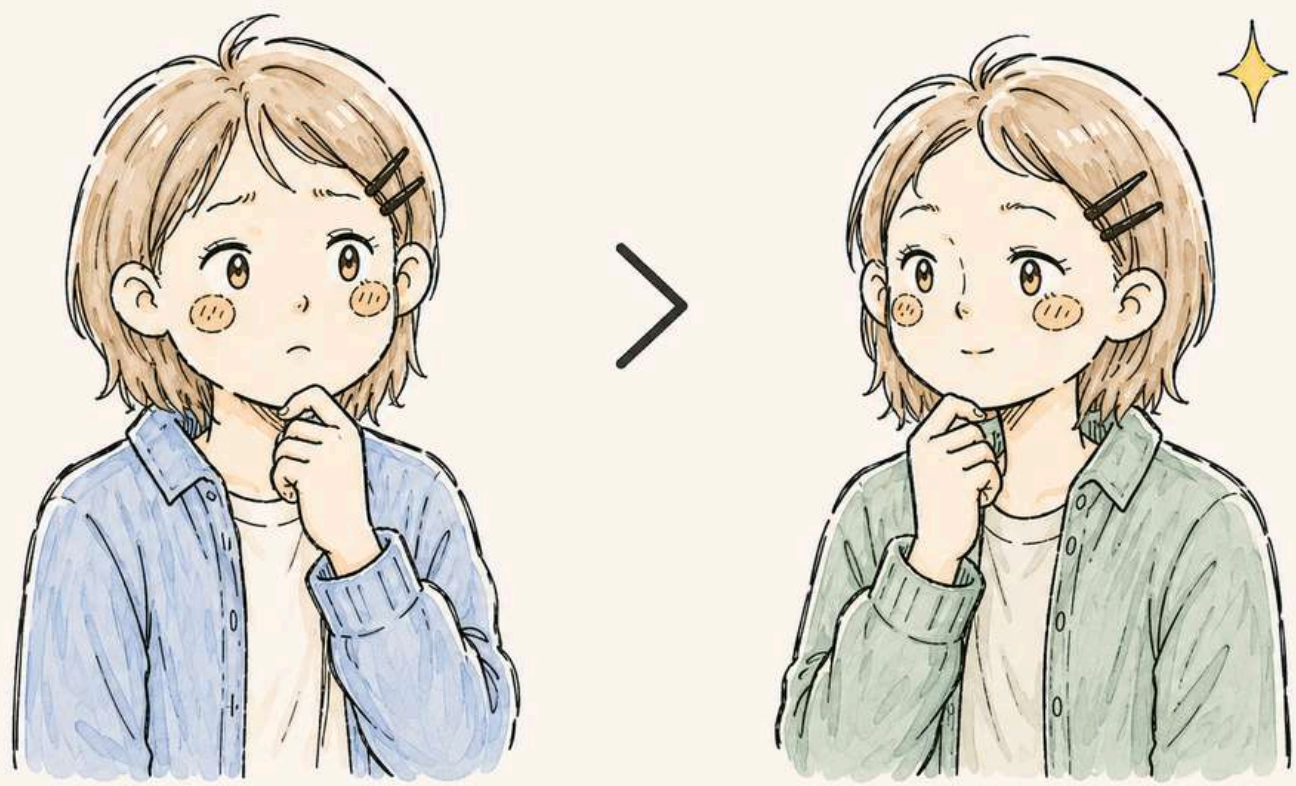

BACK THEN,
ALL I THOUGHT WAS,
“I NEED FRIENDS FAST.”

TRYING TO PLEASE EVERYONE WORE ME OUT.

I WAS TOO OBSESSED WITH FITTING IN.

NOW I KNOW
THE MOST IMPORTANT THING
IS UNDERSTANDING MYSELF.

IRONICALLY, ONCE I FOUND MYSELF,
THE RIGHT PEOPLE STAYED.

EVEN SMALL TALK BECAME FUN.

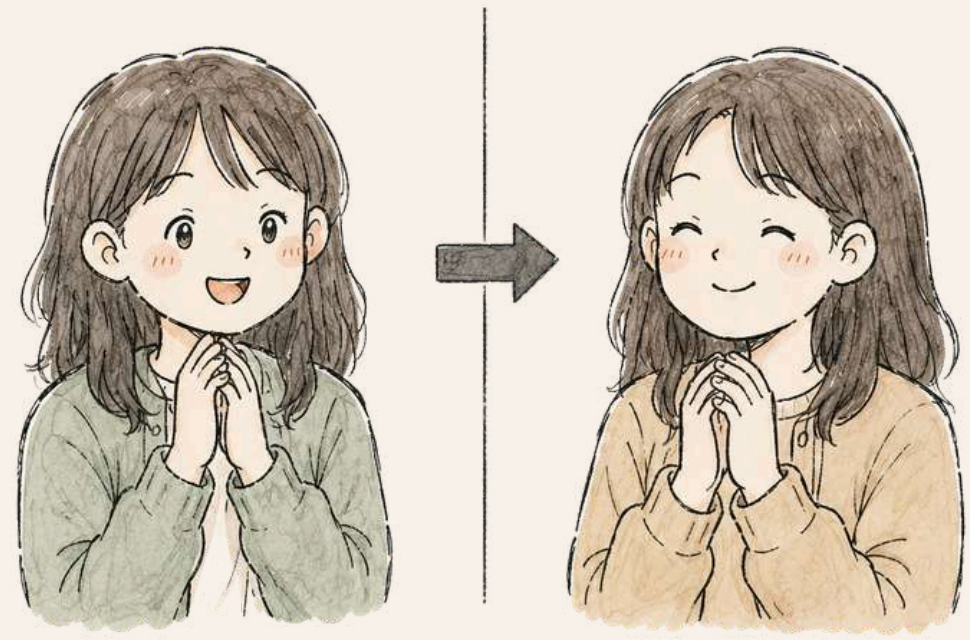

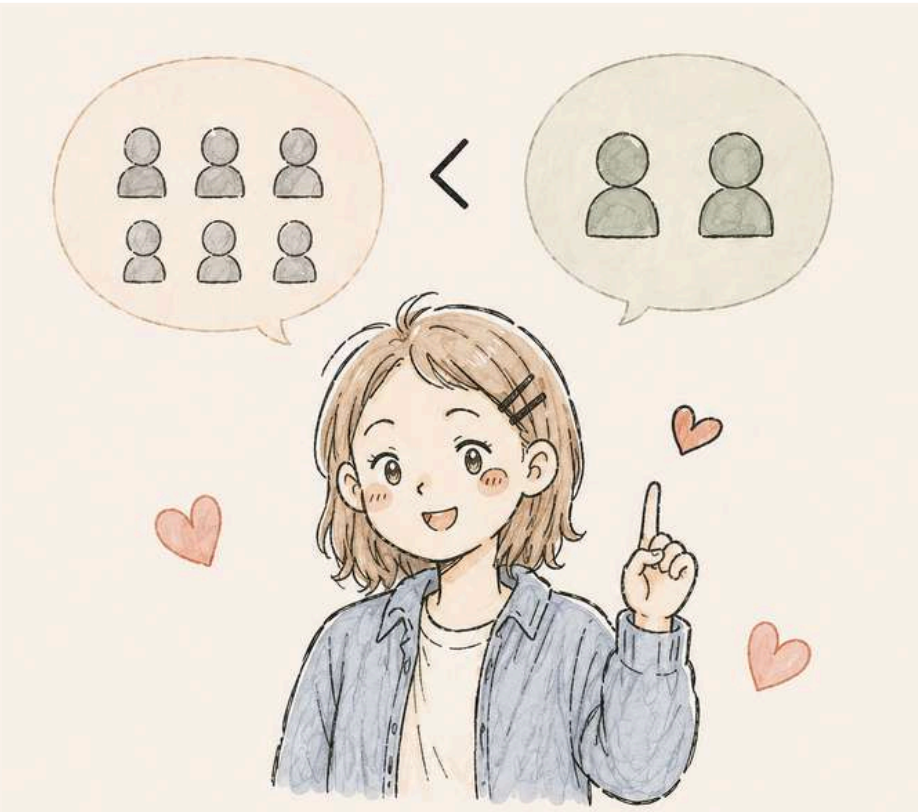

WAS MAKING FRIENDS SCARY AS A TRANSFER STUDENT?

A NEW SCHOOL FELT EXCITING.

I WASN'T AFRAID ANYMORE.

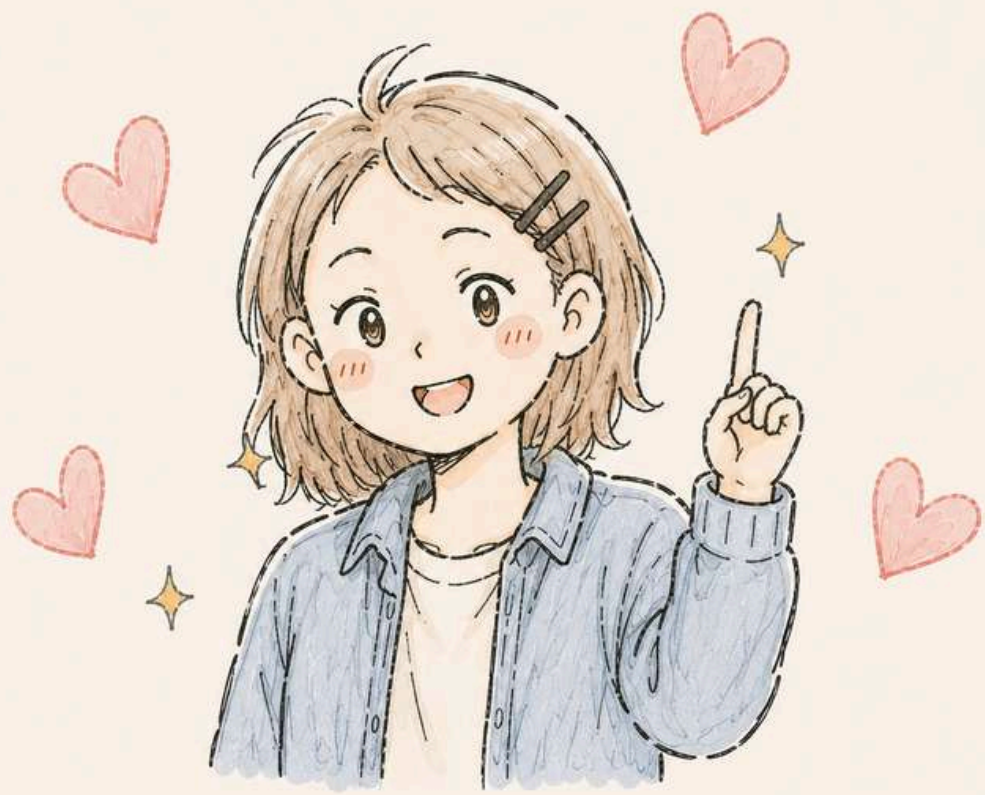

I STOPPED TRYING TO BE FRIENDS WITH EVERYONE.

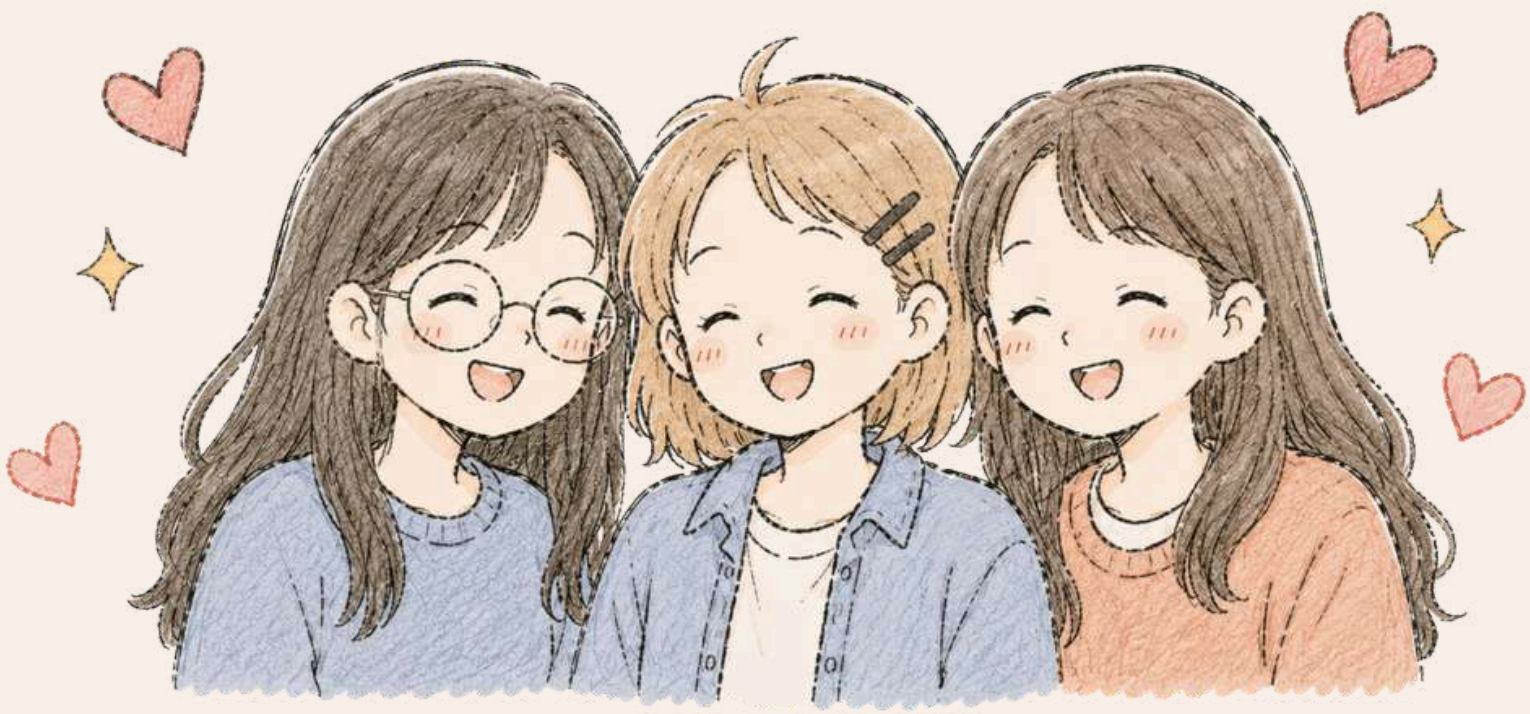

A FEW REAL FRIENDS MATTER MORE.

TOO MUCH ENERGY ON RELATIONSHIPS
MAKES YOU LOSE YOURSELF.

NOT EVERYONE HAD TO GET ME.
A FEW REAL FRIENDS WERE ENOUGH.

#01

Transfer Student?

편입학생 [Pyeonipsaeng]

In Korea, a pyeonipsaeng refers to a student who transfers into a university after completing part of their studies at another institution.

In Korea, there are several ways to enter a university. One of them is called Pyeonipsaeng (transfer admission).

A pyeonipsaeng is a student who transfers from one university to another.

To transfer, students usually have to pass a competitive exam organized by the university.

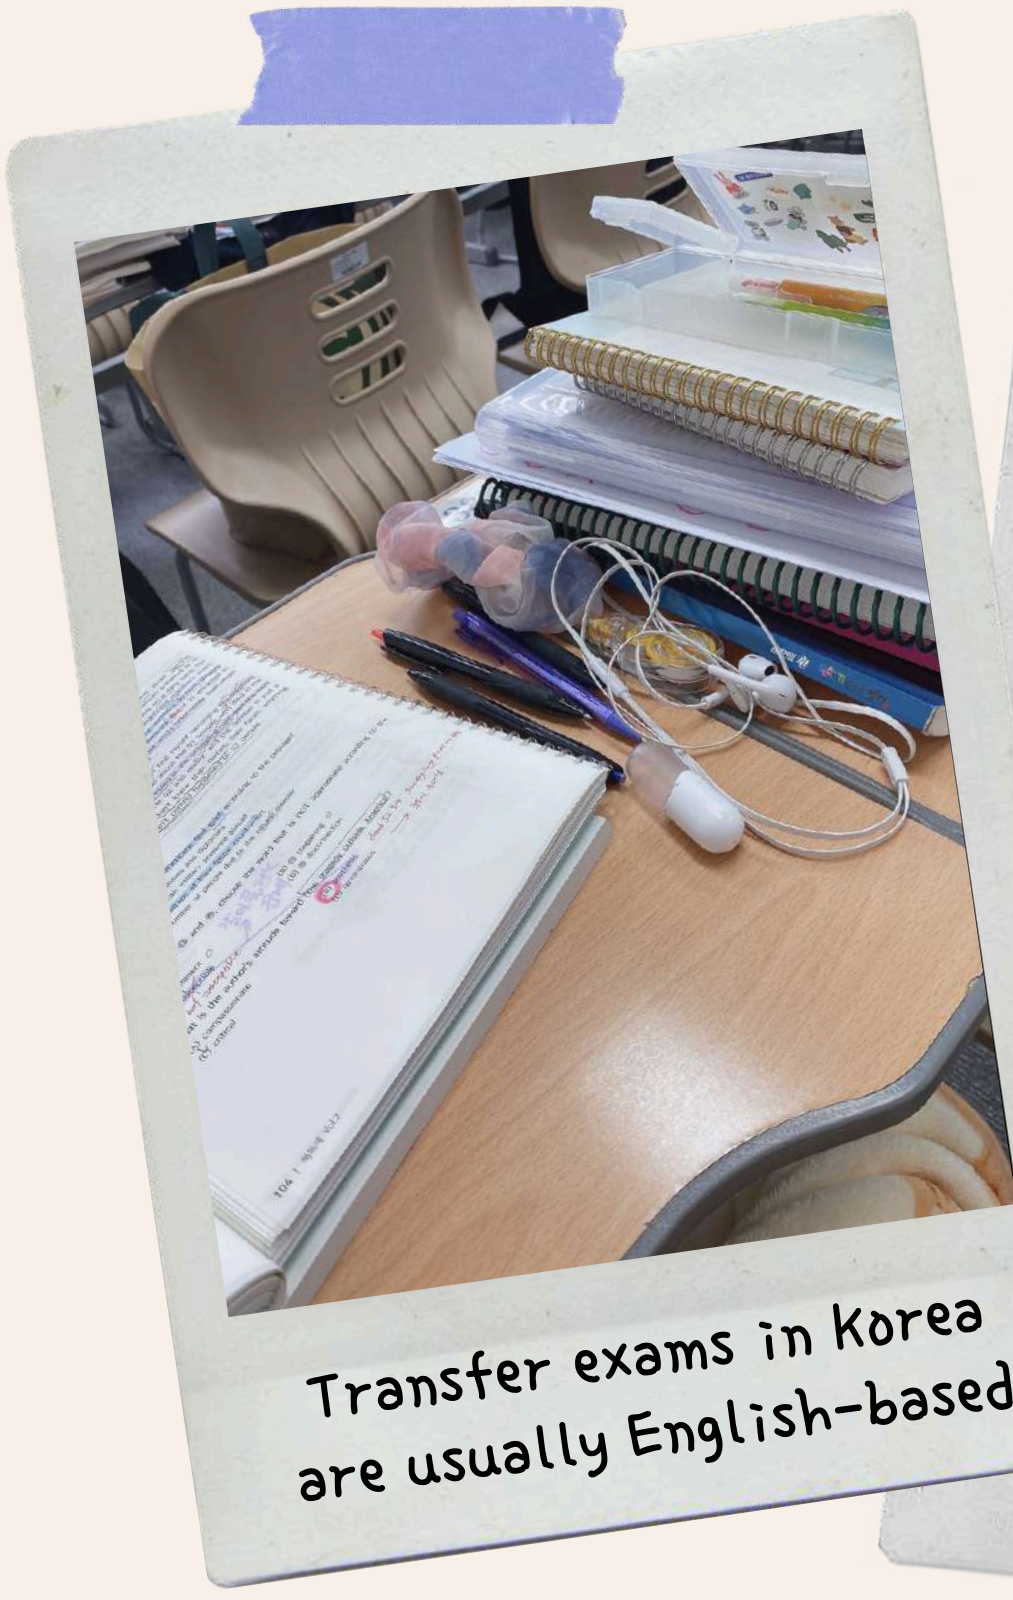

In Korea, transferring is often seen as more than simply changing schools. It can also mean moving to a more prestigious university.

As a result, some students prepare for another entrance exam even after already entering college.

Korean academic culture can be pretty intense, can't it?

Transfer study

Let's see my study for transfer!!

Transfer exams in Korea are usually English-based

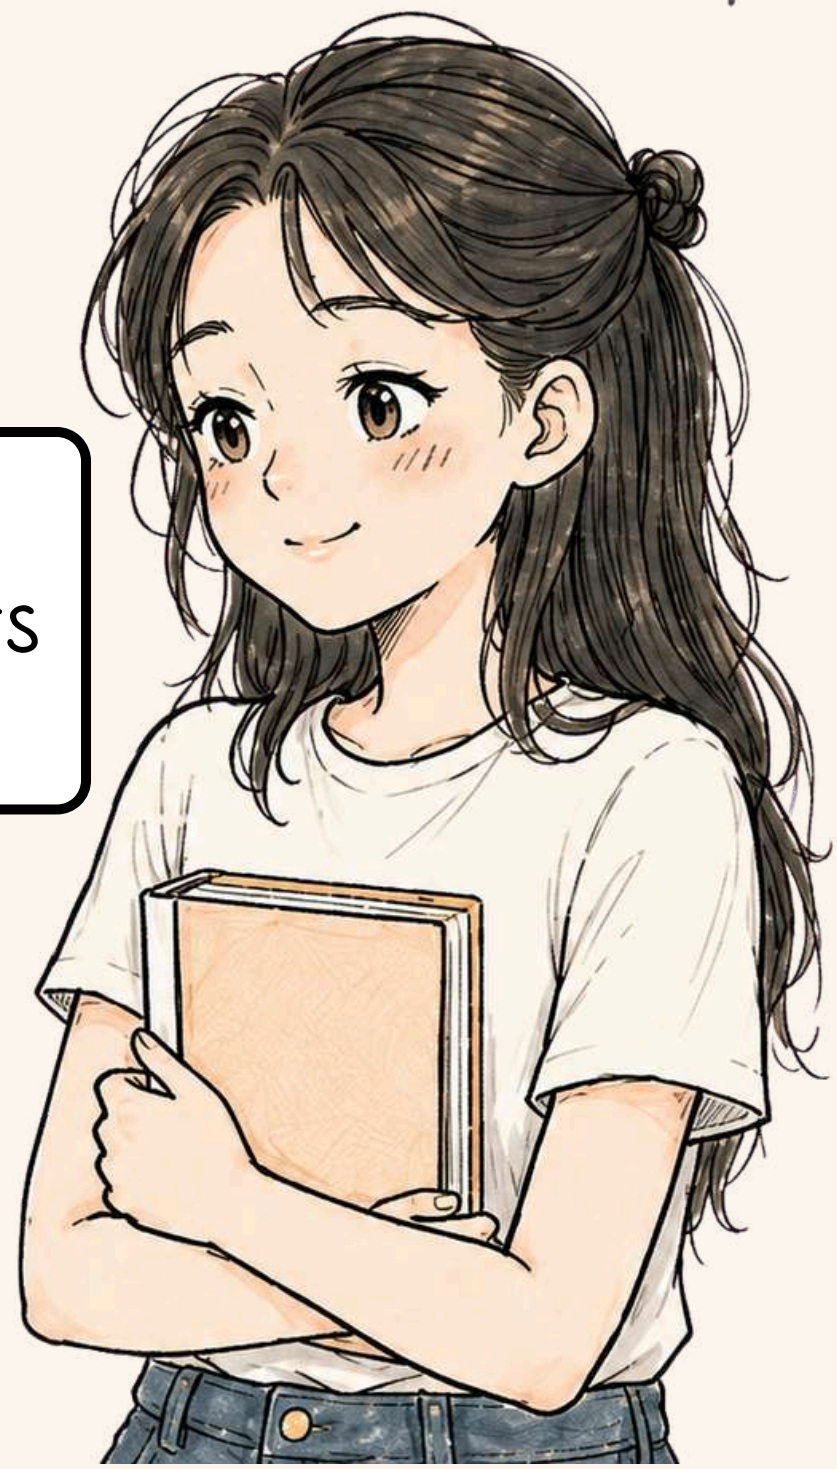

The studying never ends...

COMMON INTERESTS, POWERFUL CHEMISTRY.

DID COLLEGE FRIENDSHIPS EVER FEEL HARD?

THINKING BACK,

AS A FILM MAJOR, MOST CONFLICTS HAPPENED ON SET.

THERE WERE OFTEN DELAYS AND UNEXPECTED SITUATIONS
DURING FILMING.

I EVEN ARGUED WITH A CLOSE FRIEND ON SET ONCE.

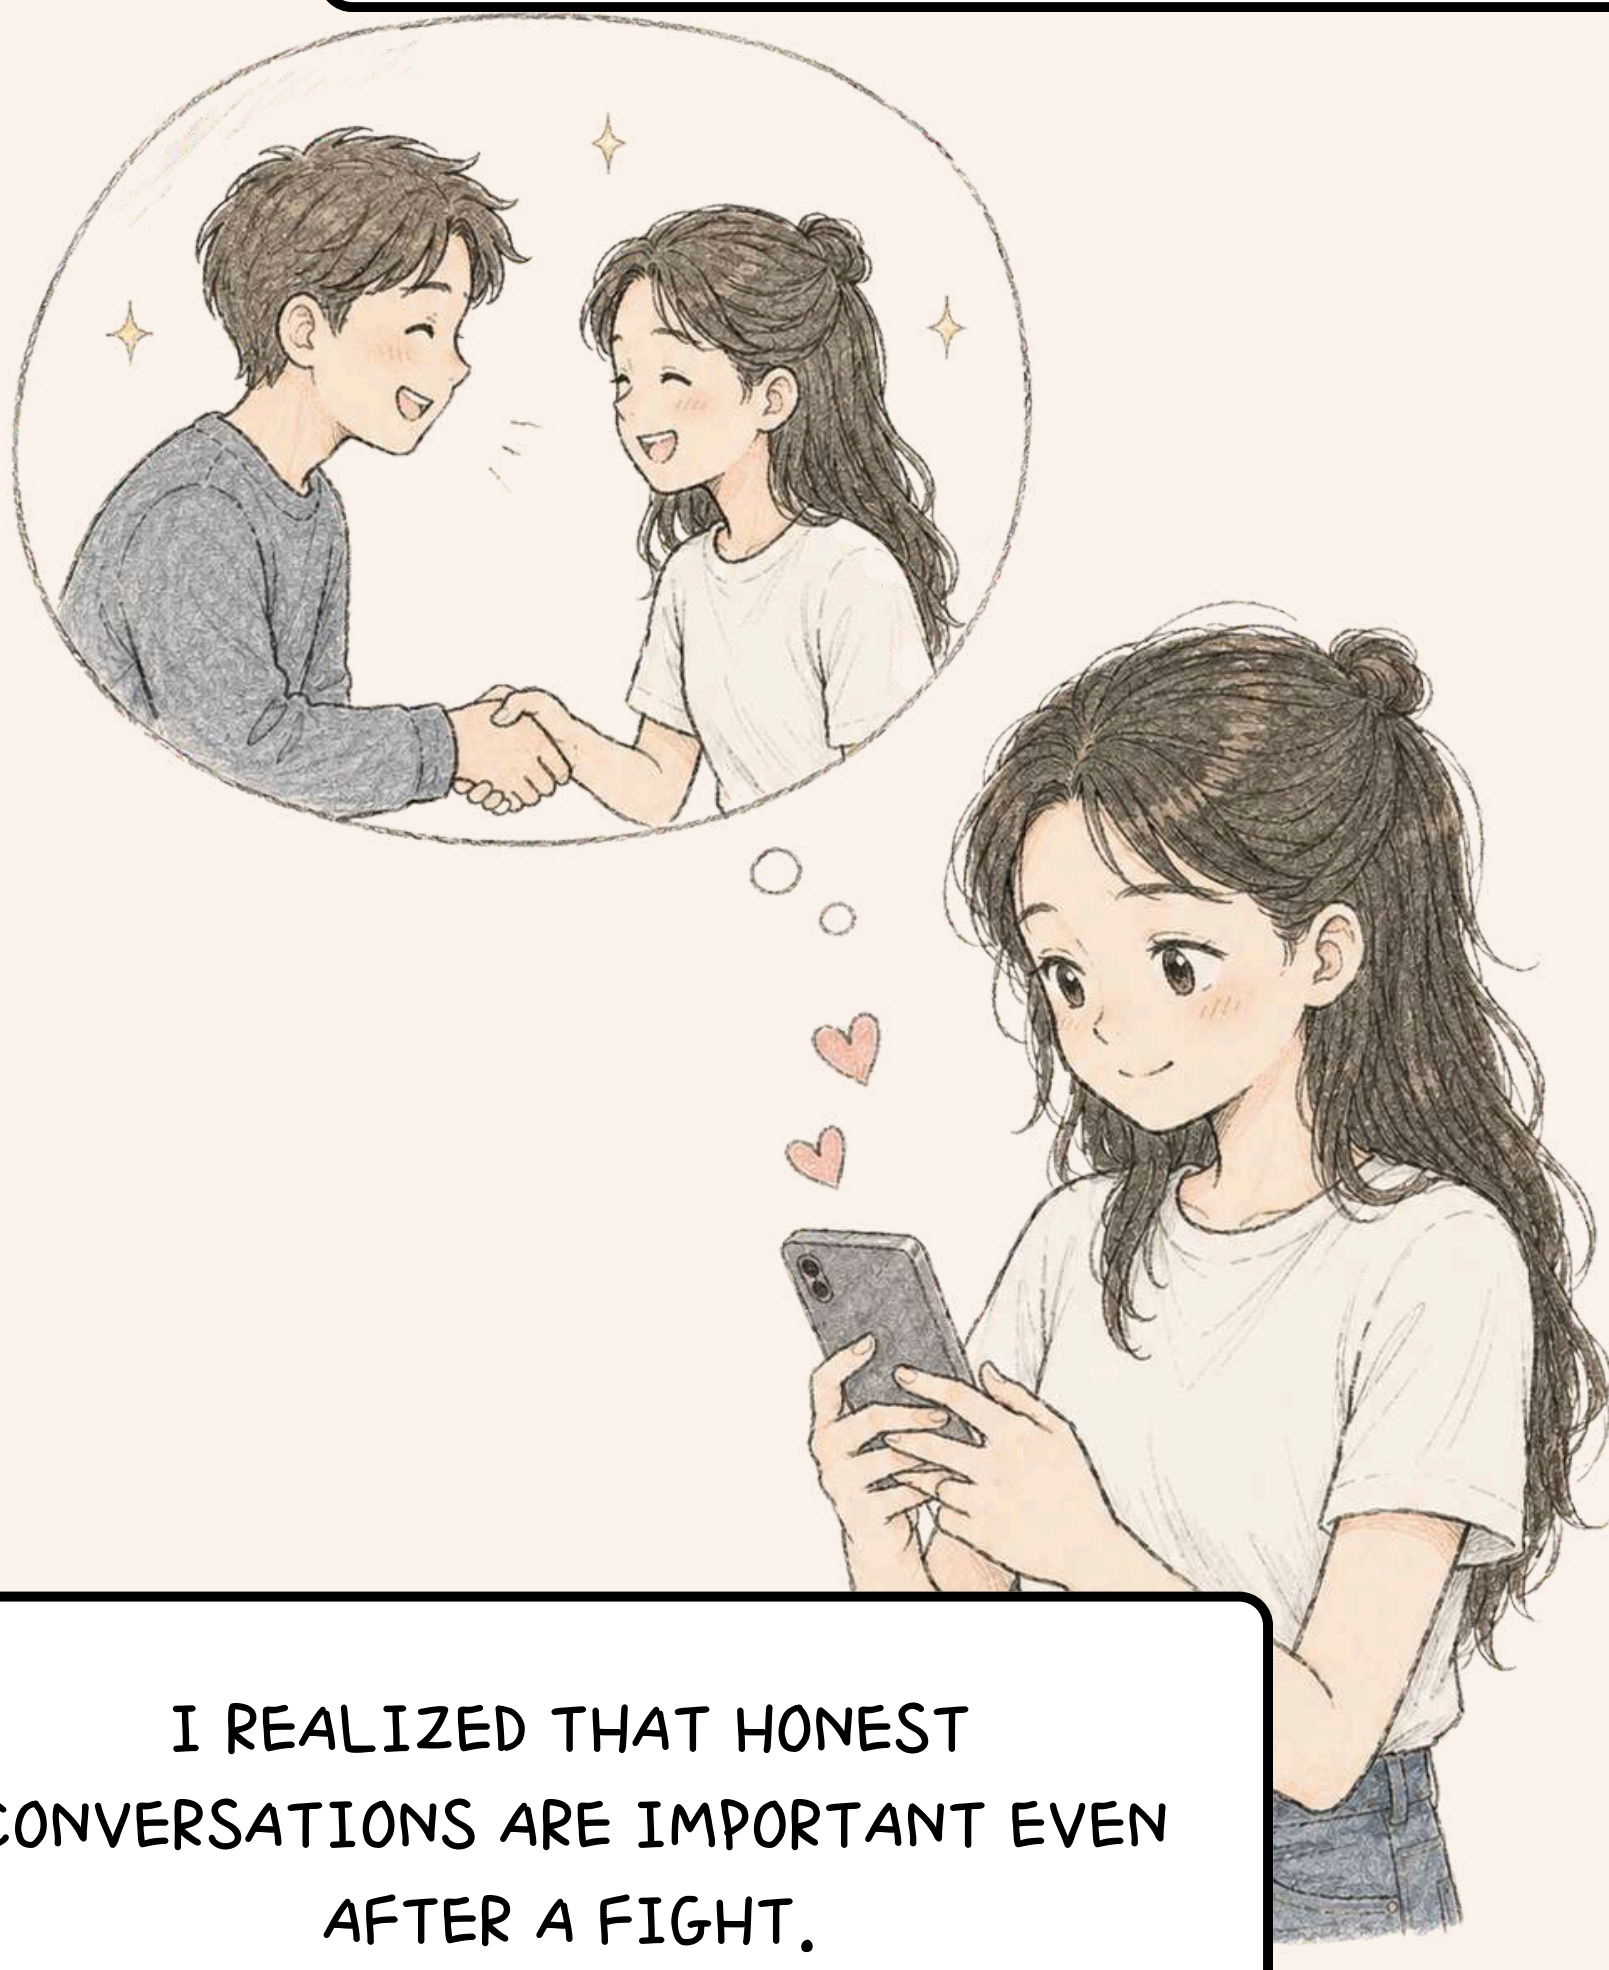

MISUNDERSTANDINGS KEPT PILING UP.
THEN EVERYTHING EXPLODED DURING FILMING.

IT ACTUALLY WASN'T A BIG DEAL, BUT AFTER WE GREW APART, I REGRETTED IT A LOT.

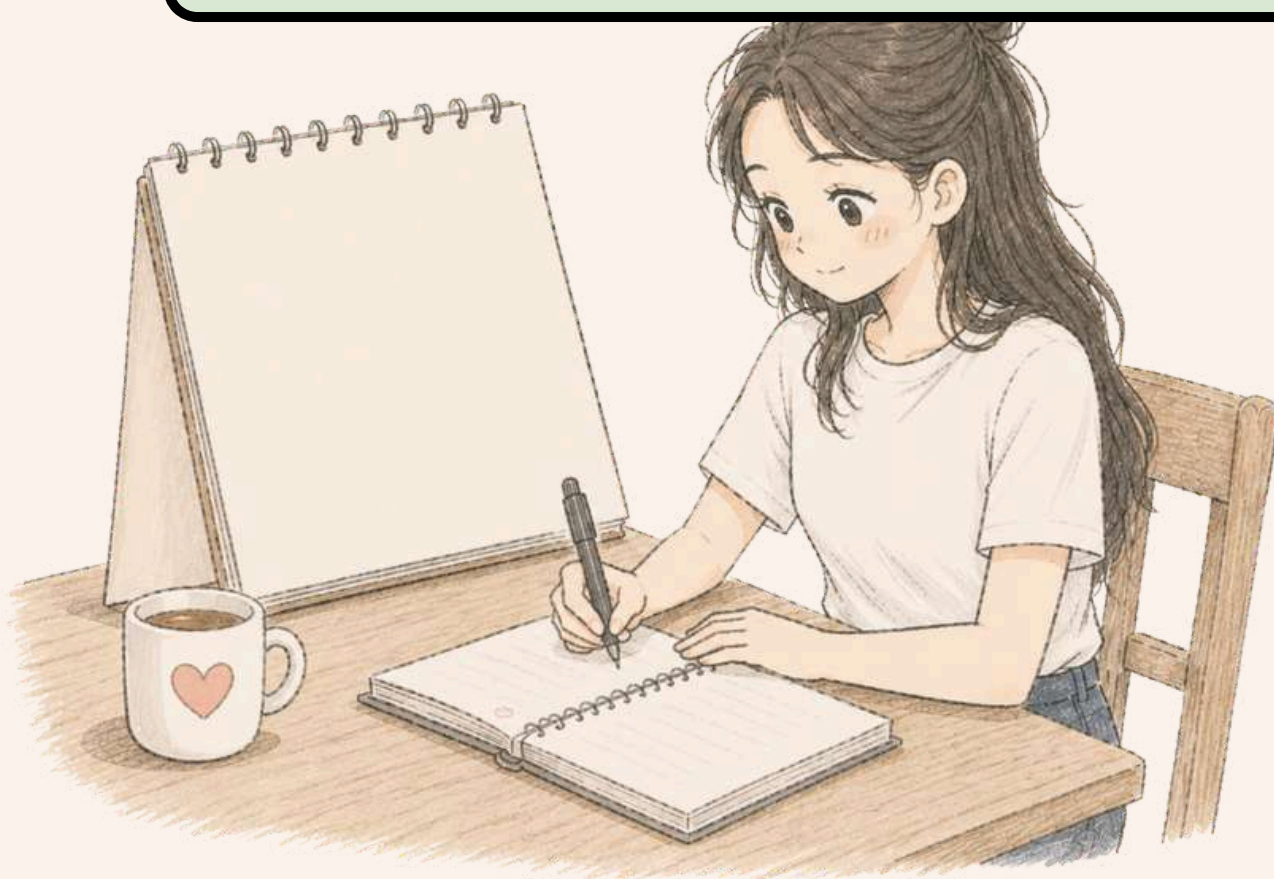

RECENTLY, WE TALKED AGAIN AND MADE UP.

I REALIZED THAT HONEST CONVERSATIONS ARE IMPORTANT EVEN AFTER A FIGHT.

DID YOU HAVE YOU OWN WAY OF DEALING WITH RELATIONSHIP STRUGGLES?

I DON’T RUSH MY FEELINGS ANYMORE.
I SIT WITH THEM, ONE SONG AT A TIME.

#02

dongari vs. hakhoe

동아리 (club) vs. 학회 (academic society)

In Korea, students often participate in either a dongari (club) or a hakhoe (academic society), but the two serve different purposes.

In Korean universities, both dongari (clubs) and hakhoe (academic societies) are voluntary student organizations, but they differ in their goals.

A dongari is usually centered around shared interests such as sports, music, volunteering, or hobbies. Socializing and building friendships are often important parts of the experience.

A hakhoe, on the other hand, focuses on academic learning and research related to a specific major or field of study. Members typically participate in seminars, presentations, and collaborative projects.

This distinction reflects a common feature of Korean campus culture: students often balance both personal interests and academic development through extracurricular activities.

Motion Pictures Club

Let's introduce our club!!!

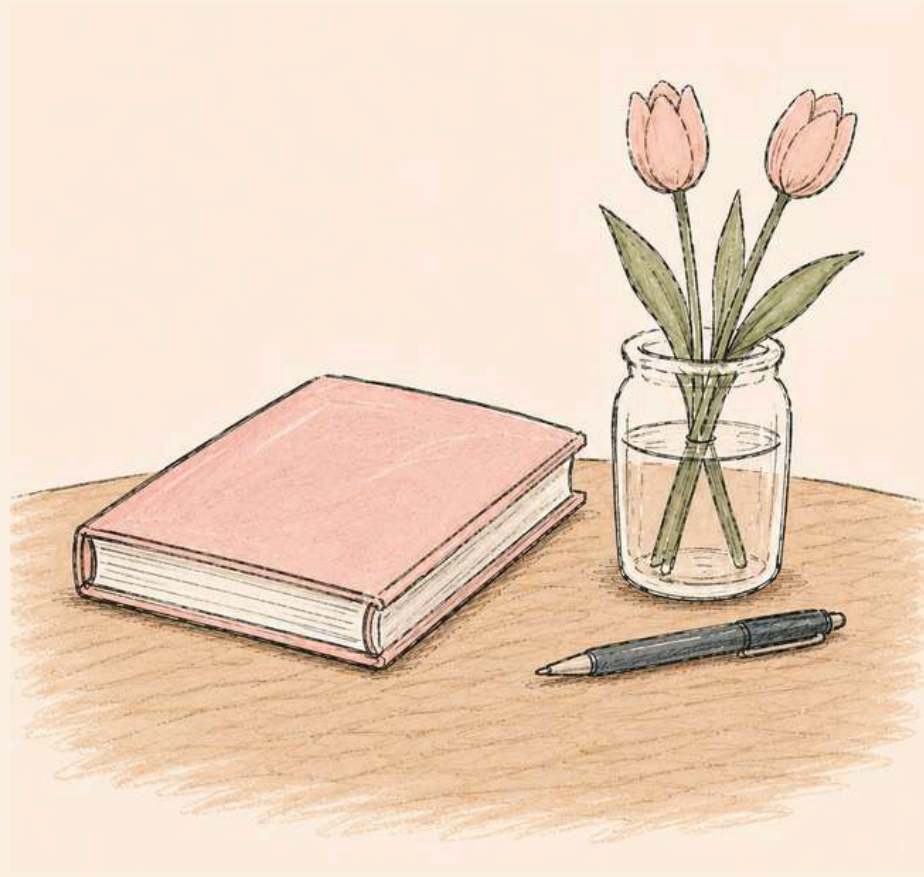

We even made our own film together! XD

ACTUALLY,
I FOUND MY FIRST LOVE
IN A FRIEND.
BUT NOW...

THEY SAY FRIENDSHIP
CAN GROW INTO SOMETHING LIKE LOVE

“WHEN SHE GOT A BOYFRIEND, I DRIFTED APART FROM THE FRIEND WHO FELT LIKE
MY FIRST LOVE.”

WHAT DID THAT FRIEND
MEAN TO YOU?

SHE WAS A HIGH SCHOOL FRIEND WHO MEANT AS MUCH TO ME AS A FIRST LOVE.

WE TALKED ON THE PHONE
FIVE HOURS A DAY,

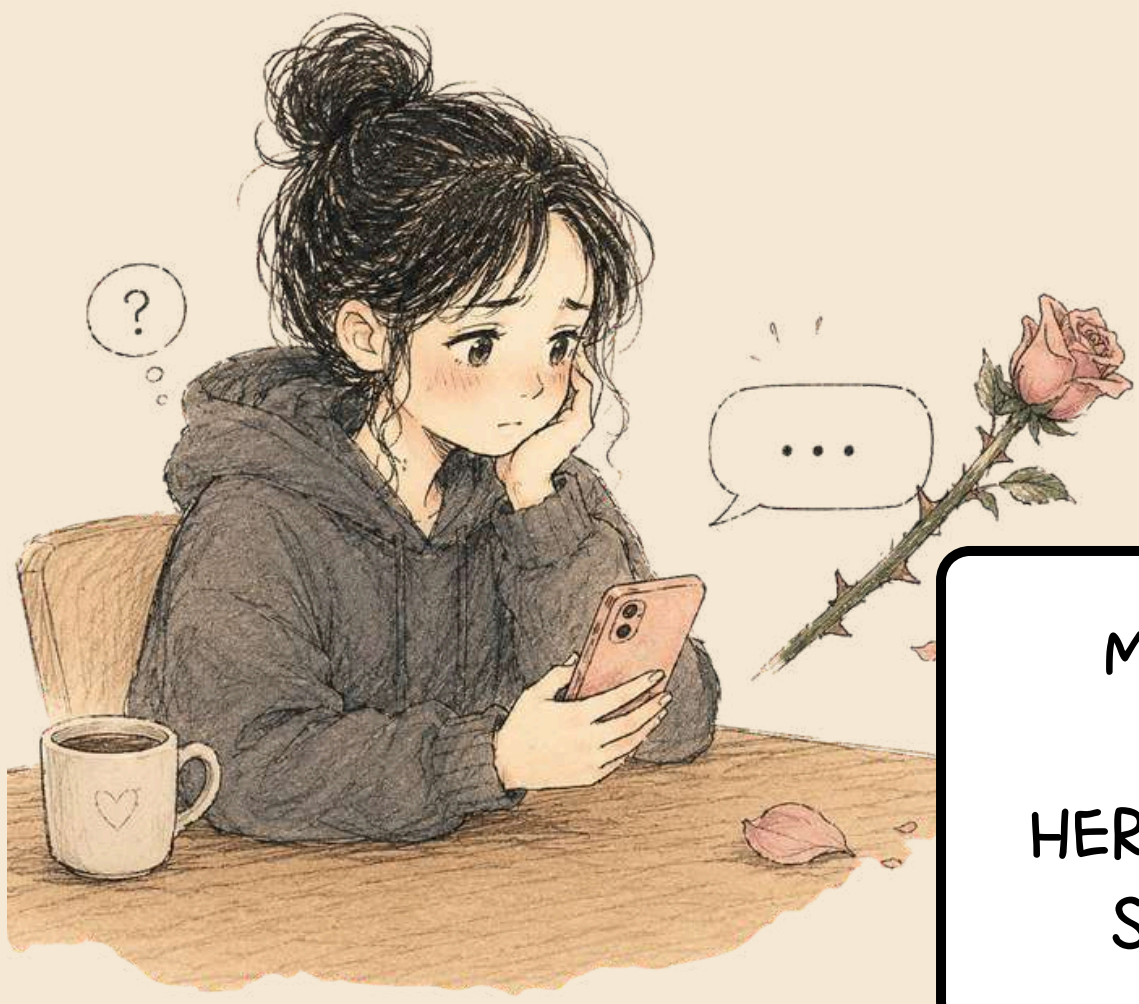

AND THE DAYS WE SPENT APART
WERE FEWER THAN THE ONES
WE SPENT TOGETHER.

THAT REALLY DOES SOUND LIKE A ROMANCE.
(LOL)

BUT ONCE SHE GOT A BOYFRIEND, WE SLOWLY GREW APART.

MY HURT CAME OUT
AS A QUESTION.
HER ANSWER CAME BACK
SHARP AS A THORN.

THAT EXPERIENCE MADE ME DECIDE TO KEEP EVERYONE AT ARM’S LENGTH.

I USED TO LOVE POURING MYSELF INTO THE PEOPLE I CARED ABOUT,

BUT THIS MADE ME REALIZE — EVERY RELATIONSHIP NEEDS A LITTLE DISTANCE.

#03

Emotional dumping ground

감정 쓰레기통 [Emotional dumping ground]

In Korean, gamjeong sseuregitong ("emotional dumping ground") refers to someone who constantly receives another person's emotional burdens. The term describes a one-sided friendship or relationship.

In Korea, an emotional dumping ground is someone who becomes the target of another person's stress, worries, and negative emotions.

The expression comes from the idea of treating a person like a trash can and unloading unwanted emotions onto them.

It also reflects a growing awareness in Korean society that healthy relationships should be built on mutual respect and emotional boundaries.

I 'm exhausted...

Stop dumping all your problems on me!!!

Whenever we 're tired and worn out,

e just lie down on campus

K-Student Vocabulary

How Do Korean College Students Talk?

#01

Gaegang vs Gaehak

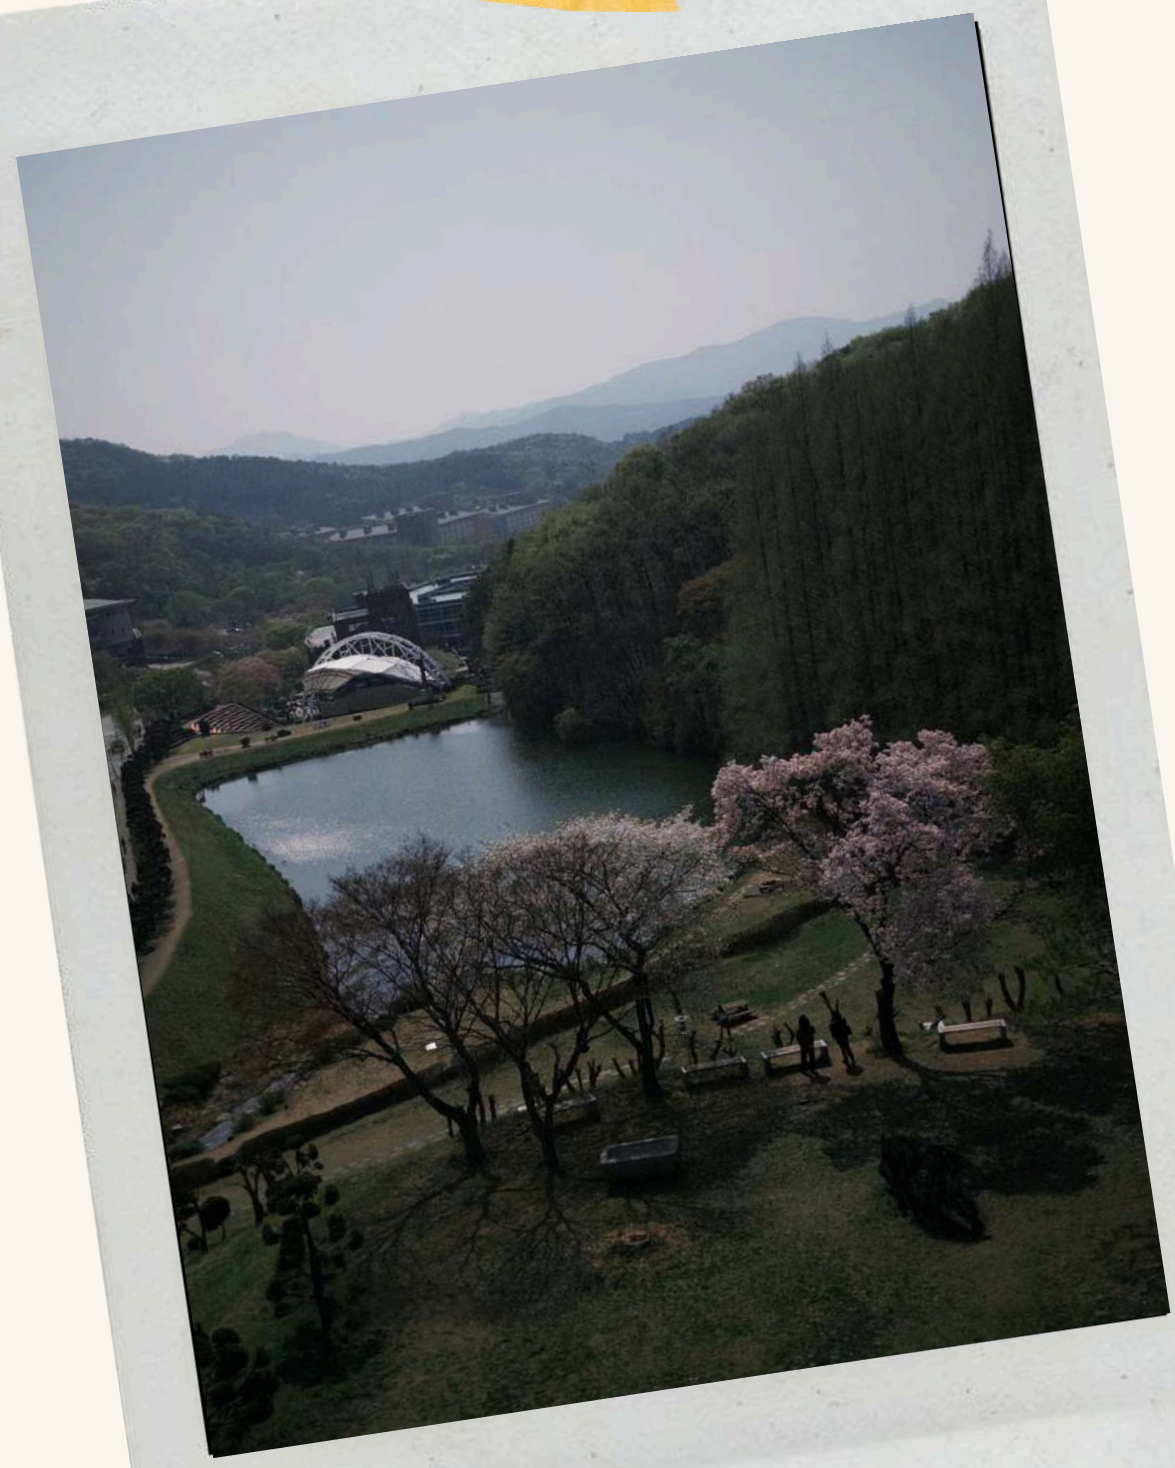

개강 [Gaegang]
개학 [Gaehak]

'Gaegang' and 'Gaehak' both mean that a new semester is starting, but they are used for different types of schools.
Gaegang is used when classes begin at a university, while gaehak is used when a new school term begins in elementary, middle, or high school.

Therefore, university students say, “The semester has started (gaeganghaesseoyo).” In contrast, elementary, middle, and high school students say, “School has started (gaehakhaesseoyo).” For example, university students might say, “Classes start next week, so I have to go to school.” Elementary, middle, and high school students might say, “School starts in March.”

Gaegang

The semester has started!!

With a beautiful scene...

#02

Gwajam

과잠 [Gwajam]

In Korea, a gwajam is a department jacket that symbolizes a student's sense of belonging and pride in their major.

'Gwajam' is a shortened form of gwa jeompeo (department jacket), a jacket worn by students in the same university department.

These jackets usually display the university name, department name, and sometimes the students' year of admission.

Wearing a gwajam helps students feel a sense of belonging and strengthens their connection with classmates in the same department.

It is especially common to see students wearing their gwajam during the beginning of a semester and at campus events.

Gwajam

What a wonderful outfit!!

#HUFS_OOTD

#03

Team Project

팀플 [Teampeul]

In Korea, a teampeul refers to a group project or team assignment commonly done in college courses.

In Korean universities, many classes include team projects.

A teampeul is an assignment completed by a group of students rather than an individual.

Students work together to prepare presentations, reports, research projects, or business proposals.

While team projects help students develop communication and collaboration skills, they can also be stressful when team members contribute unevenly.

Because of this, many Korean students jokingly fear teampeul more than exams.

Teamwork sounds great in theory, doesn't it?

Team Project

I think Teampeul is always hard.

Have you ever sold sweet potatoes for a team project...?
Well, I have.